Joe's Answers

This particular restaurant was located on the east side of a large city. The customers would always complain about something and most of the times they were justified. There was one waiter by the name of Joe who could handle any situation Let me give you some illustrations of his answers.

A woman looked at the cup and saucer in which coffee had been served her. "The cup is cracked," she said to Joe. "Of course it is," he replied. "It is an antique. One hundred years old and worth fifteen dollars."

A young man in a hurry called Joe over to his table. "What's the matter? The service is so slow." "Of course it is," smiled Joe. "You want indigestion? You want heartburn? You want time to enjoy your meal and that's how we serve it."

This woman was most indignant. She shouted at Joe. "There's a fly in my soup." He came over and looked carefully at the poor creature caught in the clear chicken soup. She never forgot his reply. "Just think of it. Only two lessons and that little fly can already swim. Bet you can't swim as well."

A middle aged man complained, "The soup is too hot." Out came a fan from Joe's pocket. "In other places they would blow on it. Here we are hygienic."

But the greatest classic of all was his reply to the man who complained that the portions were much smaller. "Look, the liver you served me is half size." "Not at all," said Joe. "We had the place enlarged. Doubled in size. So your portion only looks smaller."

A Bargain is a Bargain

He is one of the five richest men in the world. Maybe he does head the list. My magazine somehow made arrangements for me to spend a week with him. I was to do an article illustrated with pictures. Which I did and it appeared. Then he wanted them to fire me. Which they refused. So he bought the magazine and I was out of work. That's the kind of a guy he is.

When his youngest son was ten he asked a certain famous motor car company to build a one-third working scale model for him. They said no. So he bought the company and his kid got his car. Every person has an idea that money means nothing to him - except myself. And that's why I lost my job. I found his weakness. Just a human one like any other person in this world.

He had just given a party and spent half a million dollars on it. We were now on his yacht. And it looked as though a storm were brewing. You could see the heavy clouds above us. We could have made one port which was just twenty-two miles away and safe. But he tells the captain to head for another port which was thirty-six miles away. And not so safe. We made it though a lot of the guests were somewhat seasick. I was curious as to why he had decided to go to this place. At the moment I pepped the question, we were refueling his yacht. Which was some boat-with gold fixtures all around you. First he acted as though he didn't hear me. Then with a grin all over his face he gives me the answer

"I save five cents figuring it in your money, on every gallon of diesel oil I buy for my yacht. So why shouldn't I go where I can get it the cheapest?"

Time Saved

You will sometimes find the same humorous little story told in a variety of ways. We will start with this version which I translated from the Spanish: Once upon a time a Yankee was running very quickly to get to a certain place. When he arrived there, he then commented to a Mexican, "I have saved a minute! I have saved a minute!" And then the Mexican politely asked, "What are you going to do with that beautiful minute?"

Now for a version in English. My home town has a subway system. One day a visiting diplomat from a country that has as yet no underground means of transportation, was escorted through our many miles of track for a period of three hours. He was a bit puzzled by trains that were marked "local" and "express."

"If I take an express from 86th. Street to 42nd. Street," he wanted to know, "just what is the difference! I noticed a lot of people getting into the express train. They will have to stand. In the local train there were seats."

"By taking the express train they will save one minute," was the reply of his escort.

"But what can they do with that one minute?" he wanted to know. "Do you have a bank where you can deposit these saved minutes?" Now that isn't exactly a bad idea-a bank to save saved minutes. Because when a boy was three minutes late to school and his teacher scholded him for his tardiness, he suggested to her:

"I was early seven minutes last week. Can't we make a deal? Take three minutes off that and I am really early. Even have four minutes left for the next time I am late."

Do you have art talent worth developing? Take our free test and see

If you have ever wondered whether you had art talent, here is your chance to find out. The founders of Famous Artists School have put together what many artists and educators consider to be the most revealing test of art ability ever devised. It is offered to you free.

Designed for people uncertain of their ability

The people who take this Art Talent Test are of all ages and occupations. Most of them have little or no previous art training. By professional standards, their drawings may be awkward and amateurish. But the ones who possess the gift of art talent reveal it in many ways. Through simple little exercises, they show the inborn sense of design, the feeling for composition, the ability to observe, and the lively imagination which are such important ingredients of art talent.

The reliability of this method of screening, as well as the effectiveness of the training, has been proven again and again by the impressive record of success of our students and graduates.

They passed the test and went on to become successful artists

When Anthony Fotia took the Art Talent Test, he was a mail clerk, "stuck" in a low-pay routine job. Today, he's an artist for a printing firm, doing exciting creative work. Kathleen Gironda went from a salesgirl in a department store to a fashion illustrator in the same store. Virginia Bartter, a farmer's wife and mother of three, now sells just about everything she paints. These are just a few of the literally hundreds of "success stories" our students report to us.

So if you love to sketch or dabble in paints —and have often wondered if you "have what it takes" to become a well-paid commercial artist or sparetime professional painter—why not seize this opportunity to find out? All you need is a pencil and a half-hour of your time. With your special interest, it will be one of the most intriguing and enjoyable half-hours you ever spent.

What the Talent Test covers

First, you will be shown ten pairs of simple designs and asked to pick the one in each pair that has "a feeling of rightness" about it. Then you will see twenty pairs of pictures, and check which composition in each pair is more pleasing. You'll be asked to do original sketches to demonstrate your imagination and powers of observation. And in similar ways, your feeling for mood, form, movement, and so on will be tested.

When you complete the test and mail it back, it will be graded free by a member of the School's staff. If you receive a passing grade (and we must warn you that many don't), or can offer sufficient evidence of art talent, you will then be eligible to enroll. You may choose whichever of our courses is best suited to your goals.

Courses offer personal instruction

These courses were especially designed for talented people who can't leave their families or jobs for art training away from home. The 12 famous artists who started the School over 19 years ago contributed all their lifetime secrets of art technique to what they believe to be the finest art lessons ever created. They took time out from their own busy careers and made thousands of special drawings to demonstrate each point. Then they devised a method of constructive criticism that is as personal as tutoring. Your instructor, who is himself required to be a practicing professional artist, spends up to several hours on just one of your assignments. He actually draws or paints his suggestions for improvement, and then "talks" to you by letter, dictating a long, friendly message of specific advice and encouragement.

You will receive an interesting brochure about our School and its revolutionary methods along with your free Art Talent Test. If you have ever dreamed of success in art, and wondered if it were possible, why not mail the coupon at left for both the Talent Test and the brochure right now?
